Moon-Mars Conjunction Occultation (21°08' Aries)

Every month, the Moon has a conjunction with Mars. In 2022, when the Moon conjuncts Mars, there will be 3 times (June, July and December) where it fully occults Mars (obscuring the red planet completely for several minutes or more).

In June, this occultation is only visible to people in the extreme southern hemisphere south of New Zealand and South Pacific islands.

An occultation of Mars emphasizes the area and sign that Mars occupies at the time. The Martian Aries archetype will be especially potent during this one on June 22nd.
